SLIGHT FALL IN YANGTZE

HEAVY RAINS REPORTED IN LOWER DISTRICTS

HANKOW LEVEL REMAINS STEADY

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY)

Shanghai, June 27.

According to reports received this morning the Yangtze level at Wansien, Shashi and Kiukiang registered a slight fall between one and seven inches, while the level at Hankow, Anking and Nanking remains the same as yesterday.

There were heavy rains this morning in the lower river districts including Nanking and Chowhsianhsien.

SEVEN WORKERS DROWNED

HANKOW, June 21.

Seven workers were drowned at Kinkow, a suburb of Wuchang, yesterday when part of the newly constructed sluices on the Chinghui Dyke gave way under the pressure of the waters. The area is now converted into a veritable lake. As several districts in southern Hubei are protected by the sluices, their collapse will result in the flooding of these regions.

The streets of the Japanese Concession in Hankow are already flooded. This is due to the River water flowing through the sewers into the streets.

Fissures are reported at several points along the dykes at Wuchang and feverish operations are underway to strengthen all weakened parts. Official organs and public bodies are energetically co-operating in the repair work, notably the Bureau of Public Safety, the Pao-An-Tui and the Agricultural and Industrial Association.

Mayor Wu Ko Cheng, accompanied by representatives of the Commander-in-Chief's Headquarters, left yesterday for an inspection of the Changkung Dykes, one of the important embankments protecting this city. General Hsia Tou Yin, Chairman of the Hubei Provincial Government, and his colleagues also visited the Wutai Locks.

According to a telegram from Changsha, more than 20 districts along the Tungting Lake in northern Hunan are inundated. General Ho Chien, Chairman of the Hunan Provincial Government, has despatched special deputies to investigate the extent of the flood and dispense relief.

THE SITUATION IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, June 21.

The watermark of the Yangtze River at Hankow rose to 45 ft. 1 in. at 9 a.m. to-day, according to an official report received here from the Hankow Engineering Bureau of the National Economic Council. The waters were only a little more than a foot below the high water mark in the river to-day, in spite of the fine weather. To-day the river continued to rise.

The National Economic Council has despatched two engineers, Messrs. Wu Shih Lin and Tang Shiang-hung, to inspect the flood prevention work in the Wuhan area. The Council has also appointed Mr. Lu Chao, as its delegate to the Flood Prevention Conference at Nanking.

The overflow yesterday of the embankments at Wuchang and Chinkow, which were constructed in 1931, was an aftermath, according to expert opinion, of the incessant rainfall and the resultant pressure on the dykes.

The daily recordings at Hankow since the 17th are as follows:
June 17 noon, 41 ft. 8 ins.
June 18, noon, 42 ft. 4 ins.
June 19, 8 a.m., 43 ft. 1 in.
June 20, 9 a.m., 44 ft. 2 ins.
June 21, 9 a.m., 45 ft. 1 in.

TUNGLU UNDER WATER

HANGCHOW, June 21.

Tunglu, a town on the Chientang River, is reported to be under five feet of water as a result of the continued rise of the river. Chientang, a town further up-river, is still dry as it stands on comparatively high ground, but the surrounding countryside is inundated.

Reports received here indicate that several areas both in eastern and western Chekiang are flooded, the former due to mountain freshets and the latter to the overflow of waterways.

"The omnibus services in many parts of the province have had to be suspended as the water has damaged sections of the highways. Earlier reports of the suspension of traffic on the Hangchow-Kiangshan Railway have now been found to be premature.

Rice-fields in many districts are immersed in water accumulated from the rainfall.—Kuo Min.

(BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE)

RUSSIA, June 26.
A FOREIGN OFFICE communiqué states that an exchange of views took place at the Foreign Office between Monsieur Litvinov and the Secretary for Foreign Affairs in which they made clear to one another the position of their respective Governments on the present obstacles to the resumption of Anglo-Soviet trade negotiations. Colonel Gouille of the Department of Overseas Trade was also present.

THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF KWANGTUNG

RUMOUR REGARDING CHEN MIN SHU DENIED

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY)

NANKING, June 27.

MR. Wang Ching Wei denied, to-day, that the Nanking Government through envoys in Hongkong had approached Chen Min Shu with a view to getting Chen's consent to resume the Chairmanship of the Kwangtung Government. He said the mission of two envoys to Hongkong consisting of the Nanking Mayor, Shih Ying, and Huang Shaoh Siung was merely to explain the political situation to the South-West Leaders.

Cure your teeth from within—

KALZANA, the Calcium food, is the new idea in the care of the teeth. For many years people thought that a clean tooth could not decay. Yet however carefully we cleaned them they always did decay. For your teeth are living organs of the body; they may be weak, they may be ill and underfed. Through microscopic canals they get their food (calcium) from the blood.

Weak teeth give continuous trouble. By taking Kalzana, the calcium food, you can make your teeth strong and white and prevent decay.

A well-known dental surgeon writes:
"Kalzana makes the teeth strong and hard and so stops tooth decay. I have often seen extraordinary results."

Keep your teeth clean with a dentifrice, but make them strong with Kalzana. Only then will you be really free from decay. Kalzana will make your teeth hard and healthy. Moreover, Kalzana strengthens the whole constitution and gives your whole body increased powers of resistance.

BOOKS and READERSAFRICA: AMERICA AND JUGOSLAVIA.EMPIRE BUILDINGSTORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM.My Farm in Lion Country. By Joyce Boyd, Hurst and Blackett. 12s. 6d. net.

Mrs. Boyd has painted a true picture of the daily life and struggles of the Empire-builders in the lonely outposts of Eastern Africa. Her story is vividly told and with no attempt at exaggeration. It is a charming and thrilling record of a brave woman's life as the helpmate of a pioneer settler in the undeveloped regions around Arusha in Tanganyika Territory.

Throughout there is a delightful note of modesty, and the story grips the attention from the first page. You are conscious throughout the book of reading the true story of a real mother of Empire. It would be well for all to read it, for too little is understood of what white women have to face and overcome when building homes in the African bush.

The story of her life on that lonely farm on the edge of the grim forest depths is an inspiring one. It is difficult to know which to admire most, her dauntless courage or her cheerful acceptance of nerve-racking conditions. Essentially it is written from the woman's point of view, and not the man's; and it has been done admirably. There is not a false note to be discovered throughout the spirited narrative, which has been told with sincerity and charming simplicity. Humour has come to her aid in the grim determination to conquer all difficulties and create a real home in the jungle-belts.

Life on that lonely farm was filled with startling adventures and innumerable obstacles had to be overcome, but Mrs. Boyd tackled every problem and adventure with unflinching courage. "A pioneer's life is a hard one," she writes. "You know that is a fact as you read her brave story. She confesses to have revelled in both her struggles to make a home in the wilds and in her continual adventures with savage animals. In the years of her novitiate she had to fight a very uphill battle, and admits that 'many a time in those early days I retired into the forest and wept at my failure to achieve the standard of living I had set myself.' That she did achieve her self-imposed standard must stand to her everlasting credit."

Many Adventures.

In those days of pioneering she took her full share of the burdens, risks, and adventures which filled the daily life of that isolated farm. She has made herself an intrepid hunter of big game and proved herself a real sportswoman. Lions, elephants, rhino, leopards, snakes, and other wild denizens of the African wilds pass rapidly through the pages. They were mixed inevitably with her domestic gardening and daily routine.

Life on her farm was never dull or dull. Almost daily there were thrilling adventures with wild animals, and she considers it her good fortune to have encountered them. With leopards sitting on the veranda at night, and with one actually playing with the Persian cat; elephants and rhino drinking at the pool in the garden or playing havoc with the seed-beds; lions shot on the lawn; and a troop of seventeen lions paying them "periodical visits of from ten to twelve days' duration, and nightly raiding the cattle-bomas, life could not be other than filled with excitement.

Mrs. Boyd has painted a colourful canvas, and a true one. She has caught the real spirit and fascination of Africa; has ably dealt with each unexpected situation that has arisen; has made you feel her fears; made you realize her supreme difficulties, and conveyed an absorbing picture of what life really is on a pioneer farm.

This is a book to be thoroughly recommended. It is as well illustrated as written, and there is not a dull page throughout the book.

COMPOSITE KINGDOM
DEFENCE OF JUGOSLAVIA
DICTATORSHIP.

Jugoslavia. (The Bodley Head, 12s. 6d. net), by Grace Ellison, is the profusely illustrated story of a journey taken at the invitation of Prince Paul, who seems to be a most energetic publicity agent for his country. According to the author, the Royal Dictatorship worked so well that its opponents could not find an excuse for ending the unconstitutional regime. The composite policy does not as yet produce competent politicians, much less incorruptible ones. A Yugoslav publicist said to her: "You in England do at least expect your M.P.'s to be honest. We know that if a man wishes to sit in our Parliament he is a thief. Naturally a Dictator has against him all the suspended representatives, who not only lose their salaries but also the 'little presents' or illegal pickings which constitute the greater portion of their actual income.

It would be folly to adopt British methods of administration in a country lately released from so many ancient servitudes. Miss Ellison quotes Kemal Pasha's observations on a somewhat similar problem: "Your leniency and strange forms of government and your half measures would only bring disaster here. Let us once be suspected of weakness or fear, then goodbye to any attempt at governing. You want us to achieve in ten years what has taken you eight hundred years. Ten years ago we were in the Middle Ages." It is easy to guess what those engaged in rebuilding ancient Oriental or half-Oriental countries on modern lines think of the Indian White Paper.

Each of the six portions of this Slav Kingdom has its peculiar appeal for the cultured traveller. Slovenia with its Julian Alps is for mountaineering; Croatia for the lover of beautiful scenery; South Serbia for the art of Byzantium, above all for its unique monasteries; Bosnia and Herzegovina for the Near East as it can no longer be seen in Constantinople to-day; and Montenegro is still what Tennyson called it, "the rough rock-throne of Freedom," which held out against the might of Islam for five heroic centuries.

As for Dalmatia, with its succession of darkly wooded isles in an azure sea, it is plainly destined to become one of the world's playgrounds, not to lose its soul in the process, let us hope.

Miss Ellison's delightful travel book, which contains many clever pen-portraits of famous Yugoslav personalities, should be read by students of European politics as well as by all holiday-makers who wish to get off the beaten track.

AMERICA TO-DAYMR. FREDERICK KUMMER'S
BRILLIANT NOVEL.The Golden Piper. By Frederick Arnold Kummer. Hutchinson.
7s. 6d.

A very pleasant and easy-perusal of this second novel of Frederick Kummer is sufficient to give the reader almost as good an insight into the characteristics of the latter-day American as a journey from Maine to California.

The American author has a very quiet but very subtle gift of character drawing, mingled with a humour that provides the satisfying chuckle.

His present story develops a situation that is certainly uncommon. A hard-boiled American millionaire, David Rockwell, having secured enormous wealth by means both devious and dexterous, lies at the point of death, and conceives the idea of inviting all his relatives, near and distant, to visit him and state their case for consideration before finally settling his will.

The relatives prove a curiously mixed collection. Most are strangers to the dying but clear-brained millionaire. They include a United States Senator with a dubious past, who brings his gin-soaked son from college; a particularly nauseating type of cleric with an offensive wife; a gentlemanly cousin who plays queer trick with cards; a young doctor of extreme Socialistic views, and, to the dismay of all, the illegitimate daughter of the U.S. Senator, now a dancer in revue and a fashionable demi-mondaine of New York.

This ill-assorted group spend several days together in the palatial mansion of the dying man, and he interlards them in turn, weighing up their aspirations, and, in most cases, their greed. Their "will" is a masterpiece of trickery that runs through him, and many of their fond hopes are dashed. At the same time he brings two fine live stories to fruition, and the hard common sense which destroyed some hopes brought joy to others.

The book is one of uncommon characterisation, with humour that is inviting, and its interest attracts and holds from the start.

SCHOOL-BUILT
LIGHT PLANTTRIUMPH FOR DE
HAVILLAND SCHOOL

London, June 21.

Students of the de Havilland technical school have nearly finished building a light aeroplane which they have themselves designed. Destruction tests of the wings were completed recently, the fuselage is finished and the machine is expected to take the air for its trial flights some time next month.

The school pupils had previously constructed three standard "Moth" planes, which, incidentally, they fly themselves, but this new enterprise is the first of the kind attempted at a school, involving every stage of design and construction of an entirely new type of aeroplane. Further, the power-plant will be an experimental engine which has not yet been put into production the "Gipsy Minor" unit of approximately 85 h.p. In appearance the new craft will be not unlike a standard "Moth," but smaller and more distinctively "sporting." There will be open cockpits arranged in the usual tandem fashion for two occupants.

The "destruction" tests have proved that the structure is stronger than the severe Air Ministry regulations require. Severest of all was the loading of the inverted wings with shotbags to determine the safety factor of the structure in the "stalled" condition, or, in other words, in circumstances resembling those which affect an aeroplane which has lost flying speed. The officially required load factor of 7.5 was reached satisfactorily. Finally the students piled on the shot bags till the wing broke under a load of more than two tons, or nine times the load which may reasonably be expected to fall on the structure in actual flight.

CHAPTER (1)

NOVELIZED BY
SYLVIA MAISLER

Cecilia Henry and Owen, with increasing impatience, sat waiting for Tom Collier in the living room of his Connecticut home, while Rufus Collier paced the floor and raged against what he chose to call his son's faculty for waste.

"That boy just seems to have a genius for wasting his life," I send him to Harvard and he lasts two years there. I send him to Oxford and he commutes for Paris. I put him in the bank and he won't work there. Now it's the Bantam Press; finest editions for the finest books—Bah."

While Cecilia and Owen protested at this tirade Tom's man of all work, Regan entered with radio message for Tom. This seemed to excite the older man further. His guests noticed it and glanced curiously at one another. However, they were not long kept in suspense, for Rufus began to tell them of a girl with whom Tom had been living for the past three years. But he was cut short by Owen who believed that Cecilia knew nothing of the affair and that it was unnecessary to enlighten her.

Cecilia, cool and composed as ever, assured them that she knew about this Daisy Sage. Owen expressed surprise, but knowing Daisy, he felt that it would be an injustice not to defend her. So he said, "She's an extremely nice girl—hard working and talented. She draws for the fashion magazines very successfully and she left for her magazine's Paris office three months ago for an indefinite stay."

Rufus frowned. "That cable is from her. Maybe she is coming back. It would be like Tom to marry her. It offers him the perfect opportunity to cut himself off from the life he was born too. I've stood for his rowdy friendships and his ill-mannered insolence, but I won't stand for this."

While he spoke, Cecilia sat calmly, but at his last words she rose from her chair and exclaimed, "I'm sorry, Mr. Collier, but I'll have to ask you to let it go at that. You see it's me Tom is going to marry. Owen paled at her announcement, and his hands fidgeted nervously. He looked at her incredulously, for he had long been in love with Cecilia and had harboured hopes.

Rufus, delighted—for Cecilia was of Tom's class—wished her happiness, but warned her at the same time of Tom's unconventionalities. Cecilia accepted his good wishes and said she thought she could manage Tom. The two men left the room for a private chat, leaving Cecilia to wonder when Tom would arrive. She had been expected for days, but, true to a life-long habit, was late.

Half an hour later Tom Collier strode into the room and embraced her. She averted her head coyly

BEBE DANIELS AT ELSTREE

There are many who will recall those popular comedies "Swim, girl swim," "The college flirt" and "Rio Rita and "Senorita" (in which she burlesqued Douglas Fairbanks) that showed not only the acting ability, but also the athletic prowess of Bebe Daniels. This popular American actress who is now making her debut at Elstree in "She Wanted Her Man," has an opportunity of indulging again in physical exercises, but in more leisurely fashion.

In this film she is a famous musical comedy star who has installed a gymnasium in her Viennese home. Here, in a practical swimming suit she does her daily dozen, and all the requisite equipment was procured for the scene. A rowing machine, bicycle exerciser, rib stalls, Indian clubs and punch ball all play their part in the picture and Bebe declares she has, during this part of the production, lost a superfluous four ounces.

"Late" Tom was utterly aware of the fact that he had arrived two hours after the time he had asked his guests to come. Seeing this, Cecilia forthwith made light of the issue and pecked his cheek. Tom laughed wryly. "That's terrible....I've taken up with a thrifty spinster." "Well it's all you deserve."

He slipped his arm through hers and led her to a chair. "Darling did you really say you would marry me? You know I am so happy, I can't quite believe it." He was a blond-haired young man with finely shaped features that wore an expression of good humour and intelligence. When he looked at Cecilia his blue eyes lit up with a passionate intensity that stirred her normally cold nature more than she cared to admit even to herself.

"I'm afraid I did dear." Suddenly, Regan came in and told Tom of the wireless. After he had finished reading it, Tom put his arms about Cecilia, asking "You know all you want to know about Daisy, don't you?"

Cecilia nodded in acquiescence, so he continued, "Well, she's landing to-night. From this she could not have received my cable."

Then after a pause, "Darling, don't you think Daisy should know our good news to-night?"

"Cecilia agreed." And the quicker the better she added mentally.

COMING TO THE KING'S

"Zoo In Budapest" film mixes charm and thrills. Beautifully told story. Replete with a certain slow charm, replete with the enchantment of romance, youth and springtime this exquisitely filmed production changes pace and colour at the half-way mark and suddenly becomes a rip-roaring thriller that snaps an audience out of any moonlight-and-roses mood into tense, tingling excitement. Both phases are superbly done, and the result is handsome entertainment for all classes of customers.

The utter artistry of the film's pictorial composition is overpowering. leaps into action with a panorama of spine-chilling scenes that are gaspingly effective.

There are the loveliest pieces of portraiture viewed in many months. There are absolute art studies of the fearsome beauties on a tiger's head, of gliding, graceful swans, of slim, startled gazelles, of wondrously crested birds, of stealthy, fascinating cats, and of that gorgeous girl, Loretta Young. Silent romantic moments during which one may almost hear the hearts of the young lovers which have been filmed with lyric beauty; slow mists float over foliage-fringed lakes; somehow the heavenly quiet of the twilight has been photographed.

Gene Raymond is delightful as the elfin lover; a roguish Peter Pan sort of person, who somehow moves with the lithe grace of the animals. He loves. And even despite the lovely portrayal of Miss Young, the film is his, for his opportunities are greater. It is a worthy enterprise in all departments.

ECHOES OF 1858

THE FIGHT FOR ORDERED GOVERNMENT
IN HONG KONG

2.—Daily Press Editor Criticizes Opium Monopoly

When are the propensities for taxation of our Legislative Council to reach a climax? The moment a Trade has sprung up out of fortuitous circumstances, the which should be fostered or nurtured to be retained, it is taxed, and that too in the most objectionable form by being sold as a monopoly. To say the least of it, this system of interference is an act of bad faith on the part of the Government towards the colonists. It must be fresh in the recollection of many, that previously to the occurrence of the political events which have temporarily raised the position of the Colony to its present wretchedness, its prospects were so bright, that parties after having expended thousands of pounds upon their allotments, entreated Government to resume them for nothing—releasing them from the payment of ground rent, a boon which the Government actually refused to grant. Is it not therefore too bad, when matters have taken a turn, that the Government should tax, and create a monopoly of every branch of trade that may happen to be developed, incurring the hazard of driving it away?

"If the money raised were appropriated in a manner calculated to benefit the Colony permanently, by such works as exist, in other civilized and commercial places, it would be another matter. But No, it is frittered away in the dark—either uselessly squandered in salaries to inefficient incumbents, or upon preposterous undertakings to pamper the whim or vanity of the Governor.

"These remarks have been forcibly suggested to us by the perusal of an advertisement in the last Gazette, submitting for sale the privilege of the monopoly of preparing Opium within the Colony. This preparation of the drug for export, is a most important branch of local trade. It not only requires a considerable amount of capital, but the outlay in packing expended on work done on the spot, being distributed among the laboring class, constitutes it a business which the authorities are bound to foster and support. Owing to the competition which sprung up, two or three of the establishments engaged in the trade, earned for themselves a great preference for their brands, from their honest dealing as to weight and quality, and the care they bestowed on the packing. Consequently, in the Californian and Australian markets the Hong Kong prepared Opium has driven all other brands out of the market. It is abundantly clear that the sale contemplated by Government will not only tend to destroy the competition which has already resulted so advantageously to the Colony, but will place these honest traders, at the mercy of any reckless speculator who may dash in, and buy the monopoly, with a view of reimbursing himself by foisting off an inferior article on the trade. This, of course, would compel the men whose brands are in repute, to remove to Macao, whither it seems the aim and end of our local Government is to drive and deport the native dealer.

COOLING PLANT AT THE QUEEN'S THEATRE

YOU CAN SEE THE PICTURES WITH EVERY SENSE OF COMFORT

Air conditioning is a branch of engineering that has come into prominence only during recent years, but so rapid has been its progress that modern engineers can now adjust their machinery to any requirements. It is for this reason that the air cooling plant installed at the Queen's Theatre, now that it has been adjusted to local conditions, will maintain an even comfortable standard of coolness, whatever the temperature may be outside.

Many things had to be taken into consideration in installing the system at the Queen's, where many people are crowded into a comparatively small space. The four main things were the quantity, purity, temperature and humidity of the air, and after various tests, engineers arrived at what they considered the most desirable degrees of temperature and humidity for the theatre. These conditions are described as the "comfort line," and are based on the temperature and humidity of the inside air in comparison with that of the outside air. The Queen's plant works, is to maintain the humidity inside the theatre at 60 per cent., and to regulate the temperature a few degrees below that of the outside air. The ratio is as follows, the figures in parenthesis being the inside temperature:—75 deg. (73), 60 (75), 85 (76), 60 (77), 85 (80), 100 (83).

Many Considerations.
In order to arrive at these figures the engineers had to begin calculations, taking the local daily weather reports as a guide. This established the expected outside air conditions, and then efforts were made to calculate the amount of heat that would have to be removed from the building, which consisted of two large items and many small ones. The first big item was the heat penetration through the walls of the building, which usually averages about 25 per cent. of the total refrigerating requirement, while the second and largest item was the amount of heat radiated by the people in the theatre. This represents about 60 per cent. of the requirements. The average person sitting at rest radiates enough heat each hour to raise the temperature of 400 lbs. of water, 1 degree Fahrenheit. This meant that 1,200 people in the Queen's Theatre would radiate enough heat in an hour to raise the temperature of 480,000 lbs. of water, 1 degree, or sufficient to melt two tons of ice.

The smaller factors to be considered included the heat radiated by lights and brought in, through open doors.

The air conditioning plant at the Queen's can be likened somewhat to the human body, with the machinery in the basement as the heart, and the numerous supply and return ducts leading to all parts of the theatre, as veins and arteries.

The air circulation is produced by a multivane fan of such a size that it requires a 20 h.p. motor to operate it. The elaborate system of air ducts distributes fresh air into the theatre overhead and collecting the foul air through openings, returns the air to the purifier.

Huge Air Washer.
The purifying, cooling and dehumidifying of the air is done by an apparatus known as an air washer, and consisting of a large galvanized iron room fitted inside with spray nozzles which, when supplied with a suitable quantity of water under pressure, produces a finely divided spray through which the air blows. This spray removes all form of dirt, dust, and other impurities and sends the air out into the theatre again, with the freshness that is felt after a rainstorm. This air washer also cools the air to the desired temperature, as the water used is cooled to a low temperature. The third function of the air washer is dehumidifying the air. The question of humidity is, of course, a most important one in Hong Kong.

With the cleaning, cooling and dehumidifying of the air controlled, as it now is, at the Queen's Theatre, the patrons are assured of every comfort and ease while enjoying the pictures.

WHAT IS CARGO?

Silver Coin not Manifested
by River Steamer

WAYS OF CHINESE SHIPPING COMP.

The question of what actually constitutes cargo was the subject of much discussion at Central Magistracy yesterday when two Chinese, Tong Yui, and Leung Sam, both members of the compradore's staff of the s.s. Tin Ting, were charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones with importing a quantity of silver coins on the s.s. Tin Ting on June 23, and failing to have the said coins manifested.

Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmitt prosecuted while Mr. Peter Sin appeared for the defence.

Giving the outline of the case, Revenue Officer Grimmitt said that when the s.s. Tin Ting arrived from Wuchow at about 3.30 p.m. last Friday, Revenue Officer Major went on board with the usual usual search party. Mr. Major noticed the first defendant coming down the gangway of the ship with a parcel in his hand. When asked what it contained, the man said it was money ($1333.20 in silver coins) and as the officer thought there was something suspicious about this, he took the man back to the ship again and went to the compradore's office where he asked for the compradore.

The latter was not in, but there were two further parcels in the room, under the bed and these contained $800 and $650 in silver coin respectively. Following inquiries, the second defendant claimed that these parcels, and the two men were arrested and taken to the Imports and Exports Office where they were told that they would be charged with a breach of the Import and Export Ordinance.

Defendant Discharged.

Explaining why the silver coins were not included in the manifest, Revenue Officer Grimmitt said that it was illegal to export silver from China to any part of the world, and that was why there was nothing to show that there was silver on board for fear it might be seized.

Revenue Officer Grimmitt remarked that it was against the law to omit making entries of cargo in a ship's manifest, this sort of thing was making matters very difficult for the Import and Export Department who were doing their best to provide complete statistics for the public.

No Manifest.

Revenue Officer Major then went into the box and gave evidence bearing out the opening remarks made by the prosecuting officer. He added that when he eventually found the compradore and asked for the manifest, the latter remarked that he did not have one. The Magistrate held that there was no evidence against the second defendant, in that the blame was on the compradore who, knew of the presence of the coins in his room, he (the second defendant) was accordingly discharged.

The accountant of the Fook On Shipping Co. (Owners of the s.s. Tin Ting) stated that he heard that the first defendant had carried a sum of money down to the manager of the Tung Nam Co. (for whom they were agents) but this money was for the manager of the Company (Mr. Kam Sam Wai) and not for the Company, though it came from the Wuchow office.

Mr. Peter Sin then pleaded that the onus was on the prosecution to show that though the goods were not manifested, the compradore had not been informed of their presence on board but the magistrate over ruled him.

"That's That."

Mr. Sin: Very well then, I'll put my client in the box. Tong Yui, the first defendant, then accordingly went into the box and said that a Mr. Lee of the Wuchow office had instructed him to take the money down to Mr. Kam Sam Wai.

Mr. Sin: Did the compradore know about this money?—No.

Did you tell him about it?—No.

Mr. Wynne-Jones: Well, that's that.

Mr. Sin: Yes, your worship, that's that. I have no further question.

No System!

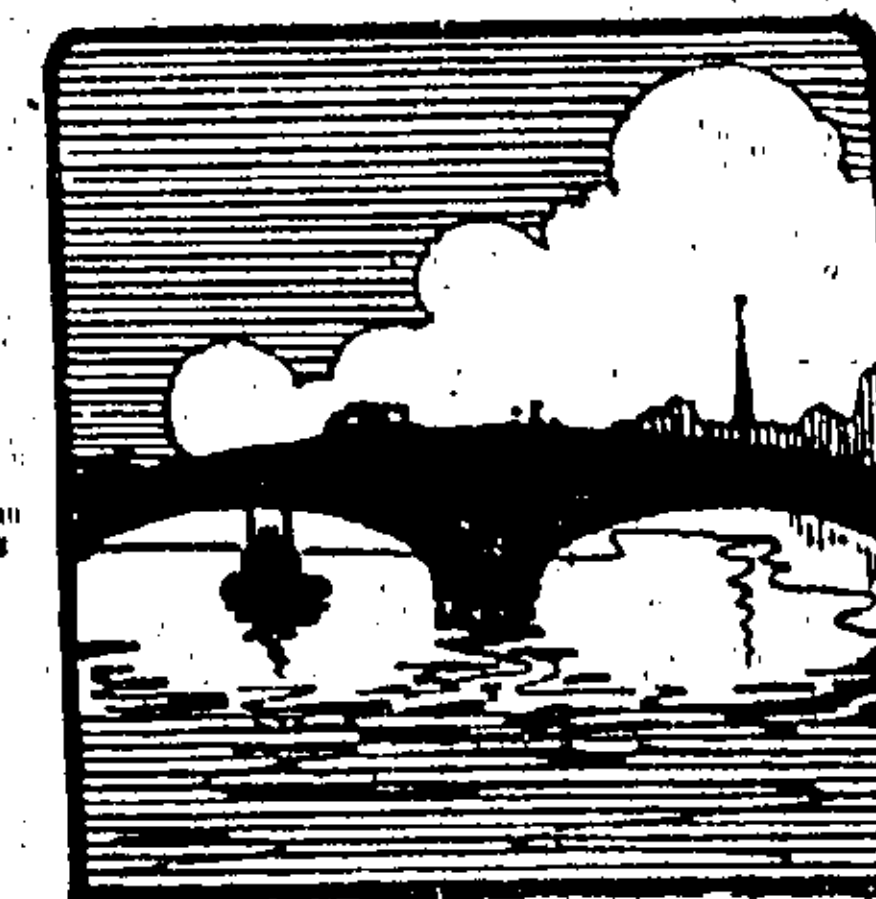

Then followed a discussion regarding the system under which the Chinese shipping Companies regulate their cargoes, and at this stage Revenue Officer Grimmitt remarked that, "not a single Chinese shipping company" on the water front has a system of shipping cargo—at least no system as the word is known to an English Company."

During the course of the case, the definition of cargo came in for considerable discussion and in this connection Mr. Sin produced several authorities to support his case. The first defendant was fined $10, his Worship remarking that he wanted it known that this "non-manifesting of cargoes" was not wanted here.

OGPU'S WINGS CLIPPED

NEW SOVIET DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

TO PREVENT ABUSES

Moscow, June 21.
The Soviet Government, in an apparent plan to clip the wings of the Secret Political Police and to prevent injustices in the courts of original jurisdiction, has announced the creation of a new department of justice with wide supervisory powers.

The announcement and the text of the decree creating the new department indicate that there have been many abuses of police and judicial power and that the local tribunals have, in some cases at least, lent themselves too readily to programmes of the political and criminal police and the militia.

The new decree gives the justice department the power to "review the legality and correctness of the activities of the OGPU, or political police, an organisation hitherto holding an almost sacred position."

Under the new regulations made for the department, which is to be known as the All-Union Procuratorial Department, judicial procedure in all parts of the Union may be supervised. The Department is empowered to standardise the court practice.

The most radical departure from the old system is that giving the department power to take a trial out of the hands of a local court at any stage of the proceedings.

Corrective institutions may be investigated and supervised to provide redress for the prisoners and to prevent or put a stop to punitive excesses.

Some of the legal authorities say that the decree plainly gives the new department authority to limit the powers of the OGPU.

Abuses Inevitable.

A member of the Commissariat of Justice, M. M. Estrin, explained that, in the process of building the Soviet judicial system, certain dislocations were inevitable.

He explained that, in a country not operating on the capitalist system, new crimes had taken their place in the list of offences. Inefficiency and neglect, not punished in other countries, are crimes in a state like the Soviet Union, he said.

It was asserted that some abuses were bound to appear in a growing machine. The reforms brought about by the creation of the new department are based on the theory that the court system aims to be corrective, rather than punitive.

It was claimed by officials, however, that the corrective system was milder under the older system than under that prevailing in many countries. The object of the decree is to make further improvements, it was said.

A Number of delegations from various districts in eastern Hupeh have arrived in Hankow to petition the Hupeh Provincial Government to take urgent measures of flood prevention and relief. Reports received in Hankow state that as breaches have been discovered along the dykes in Kichun, eastern Hupeh, with the result that more than 100,000 mow of land are inundated.

THE TUNG WAH HOSPITAL

HISTORY, CONSTITUTION AND DIRECTORS

MR. M. K. LO'S ABLE ADDRESS TO ROTARY CLUB

An able and comprehensive review of the activities of the Tung Wah Hospital, an institution which has been working among the poorer classes of the Chinese community in the Colony for more than sixty years, was made by Mr. M. K. Lo, at the Rotary Club's luncheon yesterday. Mr. Lo, who himself is a past president of the hospital, brought to light, many facts about the charitable work done by the hospital that was previously unknown to the non-Chinese community.

The address was followed with great attention by all present and in a speech of thanks, the Hon. Dr. Kotewall voiced the opinion of those present when he said that no one could have handled the subject with greater success.

Owing to pressure on our space we give the first half of Mr. Lo's address to-day and the remainder to-morrow.

Mr. M. K. Lo said:—

The first object of Rotary is stated to be the ideal of service as the basis of all worthy enterprise, and as an expression of that ideal a Community Service Committee is in existence, the duty of which is described in the bye-laws in the following terms: This Committee shall devise and carry into effect plans which will guide and assist the members of this Club in discharging their responsibilities in their community relationships.

It seems to me that it is difficult, if not impossible, for this Club to carry out its duties in community service without knowing something of the existing organisations interested in community service. I venture to express the hope that, one day this Club will undertake the task of making a comprehensive Survey of Community Service Organisations in this Colony. In the meantime, although I cannot pretend to have any expert knowledge in this matter, I offer a few words on the origin and work of the Chinese hospitals in the hope that they may be of some interest to fellow Rotarians, and of some value to the Club as materials for the Survey if and when it is undertaken.

Incorporated in 1870.

The Tung Wah Hospital was incorporated by the Tung Wah Hospital Incorporation Ordinance 1870. Its foundation stone was laid by Sir Richard Macdonnell on April 8, 1870, and it was opened by the same Governor in the following year.

The Kwong Wah Hospital was incorporated by the Tung Wah Hospital Extension Ordinance 1911. Under this Ordinance the Kwong Wah was in effect made a part of the Tung Wah Hospital, and the directors of the Tung Wah were given the same power of management and control over the Kwong Wah as they possessed over the Tung Wah. In practice, however, the affairs of the Kwong Wah were administered by a local committee, locally elected, until 1930.

The Tung Wah Eastern Hospital was opened by His Excellency Sir Cecil Clementi on November 27, 1929, and since its official opening, radii blocks, by way of extension to the Hospital, have been added.

The Tung Wah Hospital Ordinance 1930 was passed on December 12 of that year, and under this Ordinance the management of all the above mentioned three Hospitals is vested in the directors of the Tung Wah, the number of whom shall not be less than 18, and not more than 30, and at least 6 of whom shall be residents of Kowloon or New Kowloon. They are to be elected annually.

It may be mentioned that section 8 (b) expressly provides that the election of directors shall be in accordance with the constitution of the hospital, and that in particular the rights and responsibilities of various societies and guilds in regard to the election shall remain unaffected. Section 4 sets out the objects of the Tung Wah, as follows:—

- (1) The maintenance of, chiefly as free hospitals, the Tung Wah itself, the Tung Wah Infectious Diseases Hospital, the Kwong Wah Hospital, and the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital.
- (2) The management of the Yee Chong Mortuary and the Wing Pit Ting farewell pavilion (now including the Yat Pit Ting farewell pavilion).
- (3) The management of the Man Mo Temple Fund.
- (4) The payment of passages for Chinese destitutes and patients, the burial and reburial of Chinese, the collection and administration of funds for the relief of any special distress among the Chinese community of the Colony, and the promotion, execution, assistance or maintenance of any charitable work among Chinese outside the Colony which shall have been previously approved by the Secretary for Chinese Affairs.

Directors of the Tung Wah.

Europeans in the Colony must have frequently heard of the Directors of the Tung Wah. In view of the responsibility of their work, and the honoured tradition of their office, they occupy a highly esteemed position in the Chinese community, and the Chairman for the time being may more or less be regarded as the unofficial mayor of the Chinese community. How are they elected? What is the procedure of the election? Well, the procedure is shortly as follows:—

In the 5th moon of every year a notice is posted up outside the Hospital, and also in some public place near the old Fire Brigade Station, announcing the fact that the term of office of the directors would soon expire (i.e. the end of the year), and asking the Kai Fong to proceed to elect new representatives to serve. The language of the announcement, like so many other things connected with the Tung Wah, is strictly in accordance with precedent, and is couched in deprecatory terms as to the inability of the current directors to accomplish anything for the Hospital—however much such language may be at variance with the directors' achievements!

About this time notices would be sent out by the Hospital to the various Guilds who for the time being have the right to nominate representatives to serve as directors. On receipt of such notices, each Guild would proceed to call a meeting of its members and to nominate one to serve. The Guild would then inform the Hospital of the person nominated. The Hospital would then write to the person in question telling him that he had been elected by his Guild to serve, and inviting him to do so. According to old custom, if he intended to accept, he would first write a letter to the Hospital declining on account of his imaginary unfitness and incapacity. Another letter from the Hospital would be sent to him extolling his accomplishments and virtues, and pressing him to accept. He would probably write a second letter declining. A third letter would be sent to him and he would then, write in reply and accept. In more recent times, however, the practice of going through a formal refusal twice is not adhered to. If he really wished to decline, the Hospital would then notify the Guild, requesting the Guild to proceed to elect another person to serve.

Eventually the representatives elected by the Guilds would all have signed their agreement to serve, and their names would then be posted up in the big hall of the Hospital as notice to the public in case anyone should like to raise any objection to the nominees.

The Guilds and the Yan Sheung.

The number of Guilds sending representatives varies from time to time. Besides the Yan Sheung, to which I will refer, the following Guilds nominate representatives to serve as directors:—

- (1) Pawnbrokers' Guild.
- (2) Piece-goods and Silk Guild.
- (3) Californian Merchants' Guild.
- (4) Nam Pak Guild.
- (5) Compradores' Guild.
- (6) Chinese Bankers' Guild.
- (7) Chinese Insurance Guild.
- (8) Importers of Foreign Goods Guild.
- (9) Chinese Medicine Guild.

The above Guilds are Guilds properly so called. There is one special body which is not strictly a Guild, but which has always had the right of sending representatives, namely the Yan Sheung, literally meaning "Wealthy Merchant". Anyone who subscribes either $50 or $100 to the Hospital becomes a member of this Body, but he has to continue to subscribe such sum annually, otherwise he ceases to be such a member. The number of Directors elected by the Yan Sheung varies from time to time. This year the Yan Sheung elected 8 out of the 20 Directors serving.

The mode of electing a representative of the Yan Sheung is the same in principle. But as the body is necessarily vague and fluctuating,

ROTARY CLUB'S NEW OFFICERS

TO ASSUME OFFICE NEXT WEEK

The Hon. Dr. S. W. T'so, President of the Rotary Club, will be relinquishing office at the end of this month and the new president, Mr. T. B. Wilson, will take over on July 1.

Yesterday the retiring Chairman, addressing the members of the Club, said:—

Fellow Rotarians.—This is the last meeting at which I shall preside as President. The Officers-elect for the coming year will, according to our Club Rules, take office on the 1st of July. I take this opportunity of expressing my hearty thanks to the retiring Directors, Secretaries, Treasurer and other members of the various Committees for the splendid support they have given me during my term of office.

Although during the past year the Club has not launched out any fresh scheme of public service, it has maintained the spirit of Rotary and good-fellowship and continued to support the playground scheme initiated by the Club. When the small Playground Association was formed, the Club, by resolution, agreed to support that Association for a period of three years and to hand over to it our playgrounds for management when it begins to function and I hope members will continue to do their best in helping this new Association.

Hong Kong is a unique place for the large amount of Charitable Work being carried on here. I feel sure every member of the Club is, in the same way or other, a supporter of some of these Charitable Institutions. Rotarian M. K. Lo will presently address us on the Aspect of Chinese Community Service, Chinese Hospitals. In this respect I feel sure that every section of the Community is doing its part in supporting the many Charitable Institutions in Hong Kong although such services to the public were not rendered in the name of the Club but individually.

In retiring with my brother officers I am happy to say that our successors are, everyone of them, men of energy and great resource, and I feel sure that the affairs of the Club will attain greater success than hitherto, and in the name of the Club, I extend to them our hearty welcome and wish them every success. (Applause).

The exact method of election is as follows:—

About the time when letters would be sent out to the various Guilds, but usually a little later in the year, a public advertisement is inserted in the papers stating that the election of representatives of the Yan Sheung would be held at the Hospital on the date therein stated. On the day in question, usually a few of the Yan Sheung would be present, but in any case the current directors representing Yan Sheung would be present, together with their colleagues. Those who were willing to stand would have been previously ascertained, and the election would be merely a matter of formality.

Activities of the Hospital.

Such, in brief, is the way in which the Directors of the Tung Wah are elected annually, on whom, since 1930, lies the responsibility of administering the affairs of all the three Hospitals. It is impossible for me, within the time at my disposal, to describe to you the manifold activities of these Hospitals; I shall have to try to convey some mental pictures to you in the form of figures. But before doing this, I should like to say a few words on the history of the Tung Wah itself as the leading Chinese institution in the Colony. (The remainder of the address will appear in to-morrow's issue).

DR. KOTEWALL RETURNS THANKS

Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall said:—Mr. President and brother Rotarians.—Rotarian M. K. Lo has given us a very interesting account of an institution dear to the heart of the Chinese—the Tung Wah and its allied hospitals. No one, I think, could have handled this subject with greater success than Rotarian Lo, for not only is he a past chairman of the three hospitals, but he has also the advocate's trained faculty of presenting a case with combined brevity and clearness.

In the short space of less than half an hour the speaker succeeded in telling us something of the history and constitution, functions and administrative details of the Tung Wah; but with the modesty of a player in the game he has refrained from mentioning one thing. (Continued on Page 12.)

CANTON NOTES

Government Aid for Kerosene Refineries

(From Our Own Correspondent)

CANTON, June 26. The local authorities are reported to be taking steps to aid the native kerosene distilleries, several of which have failed. In the first place, a registration of all such distilleries will be ordered and is to be completed in about a month's time. Particulars regarding the output, prices, cost of production are to be gathered from those registered, when the Government will proceed with constructive measures to help this new industry which is giving employment to thousands of workers. After the registration had been effected, factories not duly registered in accordance with regulations will not be allowed to operate. Meantime, restriction will also be placed on the importation of fuel oil from which kerosene is distilled. Permits will, it is understood, be applied for in importing this commodity, while goods below a specified standard in quality will not be allowed to be imported.

Diesel Buses. The municipal authorities are also considering the introduction into the city of omnibuses with diesel oil engines, which are more economical than those run with gasoline. One of the bus companies is reported to have obtained several of the new type of vehicles with which experiments will be carried out, under the supervision of the municipal authorities. If the experiments prove satisfactory, the new vehicles will be put on the roads of the city.

MURDER OF AN OLD WOMAN

Evidence of Prisoners' Sudden Affluence

JEWELLERY AND FURNITURE BOUGHT

The case in which a young Chinese named Fan Hing (30) and his wife, Yeung Shui Kui, are charged with the murder of an aged woman named Po Mui, at Shaikwan on the night of May 31, was continued before Mr. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday.

Mr. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General appeared for the Crown. A Chinese named Ng Hok Loong, master of the Kwong Chui Loong furniture shop gave evidence to the effect that on June 1, the two defendants went into his shop and ordered a lot of furniture to the value of $18. Before they left the shop, the second defendant asked the first one to pay a deposit of $10 against the goods ordered, and two days later the man returned and paid the balance of the money.

Wu Kam Chuen, an accountant in the Woo Shing goldsmiths' shop stated that on the afternoon of June 1, he made certain entries in his books relating to the purchase of gold to the value of $7.50, a pair of ear-rings and a chain bracelet. Witness said that his mother asked him to make these entries, and it was stated that the mother would be called later to give evidence regarding the sale of the articles.

Stayed Only Two Days.

The next witness called by the prosecution was a married woman named Lo Sing who stated that she was the principal tenant on the second floor of 87B, Canton Road. On the afternoon of June 1, the second defendant interviewed her and she (the second defendant) agreed to rent a cubicle on the floor at $8 per month. Both defendants came to stay in the cubicle on June 3, and at about 3 p.m. on June 3, they went out and that was the last she saw of them.

Mr. Fraser indicated that there would be three more witnesses for the prosecution, but they would not take long to give their evidence. One of them, a woman, was ill and would not be able to attend Court for a few days, but his Worship decided to adjourn till to-day when he would take what evidence he could, and the case again when the sick woman was well enough to be present.

LEAVE TO PRESUME DEATH REFUSED

Chief Justice not Satisfied with Evidence

MAN MIGHT HAVE SWUM ASHORE

The Acting Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, yesterday refused the application made by Mr. Leo D'Almada e Castro, junior, for leave to presume the death of a rubber planter named Yap Chee Meow who is alleged to have died by drowning on September 8 last year.

China Underwriters Ltd., with whom Yap was insured for $50,000 Straits money, opposed the application on the ground that the circumstances of the alleged drowning, and the whole question of the identity of the insured person were open to suspicion.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., represented the Insurance Company. Mr. Potter in his concluding address to the Court drew attention to the many suspicious circumstances, which characterised the story of the alleged drowning. He emphasised the fact that no one in Kuala Lumpur knew the deceased. He also drew the Court's attention to the fact that the two men who introduced the deceased to the Insurance Company had not come forward. Pointing to the many loopholes in the story of the applicant, Mr. Potter said: If this is a dishonest attempt to get money out of the insurance company it has been carefully planned.

Mr. Potter pointed out that with regard to the alleged drowning, there could have been three possibilities. The first was that Yap fell overboard. The second was that it was not Yap but someone else who fell overboard. The third was that no one fell overboard at all. To these probabilities, His Lordship added a fourth to the effect that the person who fell overboard might have swum ashore.

"If you are able to accept the evidence," said Mr. Potter, "I submit that the case is so full of suspicion that you fall entirely short of the standard which Mortimer said ought to be reached and that is, that you ought to have clear and cogent evidence establishing the death of the assured."

Mr. D'Almada in opening his speech for plaintiff's said: "Heaven forbid that any of my actions should be subjected to Mr. Potter for analysis, because in this case many innocent and perfectly straightforward acts were made to look like shady and suspicious transactions."

Mr. D'Almada then dealt with the evidence and contended that it was highly improbable that there could have been any fraudulent design. He asked his Lordship to say that the man who was drowned was in fact Yap as there were no reasons for witnesses to come forward and tell the stories they had told unless they were true. If his Worship found there was no fraud then there was reasonable ground for presuming Yap was dead. He asked his Lordship not to count against the woman, the fact that an unfortunate combination of circumstances made it impossible for her to produce further evidence.

His Lordship: In deciding the question, I want to say that I have not got to decide that when the life insurance policy was taken out in December 1930, there was fraudulent intent or not.

His Lordship went on to say that he was not satisfied with the witness who said that Yap was on board the Ferry, and further that he was not satisfied that the person who fell or jumped overboard was Yap.

"I am accepting the evidence that a man did fall or jump overboard. Who he was I do not know. He went into the water at a point close to shore and he might easily have swum ashore as it was very near land where the incident happened, and it was off a neighbourhood within walking distance of the village from which the assured had come."

His Lordship dismissed the application.

BRITISH AGRICULTURAL SHOWS

This season of agricultural shows in Great Britain has commenced, and once again townspeople and visitors from abroad, to whom London is the embodiment of England, are reminded that, in spite of industrialisation, agriculture is the backbone of the country and constitutes its most important industry. The "Bath and West and Southern Counties Society" last month had a most successful exhibition, in Wimbledon on the outskirts of London. It may seem somewhat incongruous to connect London, the world city of seething business life, with the peaceful pursuits of the countryside, but the excellent attendance showed that the population of the capital is keenly interested in cattle and crops, dairy methods and bee-keeping, and follows the fortunes of the farmer with alert sympathy. This year's "Bath and West" was the 15th annual event, and the Society has rendered great service to British agriculture since its inception in 1777. Soon after it was founded, it began to investigate the most profitable and efficient methods of growing corn; it also devoted its energies to the study of various diseases among cattle and crops and their cures and means of prevention. It organised competitions in various classes of farm work, such as ploughing, butter making, etc., thereby spurring on the farmer towards higher standards. The degree of excellence which now marks English wool is in a large measure due to the work of the Society for the improvement in the strains of sheep.

The British farmer is a conservative-minded man, who would, by nature, feel more satisfied with an improvement on the methods of his fathers than by any radical alteration. It is therefore greatly to his credit that one of the outstanding features of the show was a comprehensive array of machines and devices for the application of electricity to farm work. There were milking machines, incubators, churns, and hosts of other apparatuses worked by electricity, as well as electric cables designed to fertilize the soil and improve the crops without the application of manure. But this does not mean that the human element in British agriculture will lose its significance within an appreciable time. On the contrary, the general interest shown in the competitions arranged for such events as butter and junket making, milking, and sheep shearing, as well as the fine display of handicrafts, would seem to prove that, although the progressive British farmer, so to say, may put his money on the milking machine, his sympathies still remain with the dairymaid!

The pedigree stock at the show, which was valued at over £2,000,000, included cattle ranging from giants from Devon and Sussex weighing nearly a ton, to the small Dexter cows, looking not much bigger than a large dog. The entries of cattle numbered over 500. Among the notable prize-winners was H.M. the King, who captured three prizes with cattle from his famous Hereford herd. There was a fine collection of Red Poll cattle, which is now considered as being the best breed in the country for the dual purpose of producing beef and milk. The champion cow of this kind at the show gave 7½ gallons of milk per day. It is a well-known fact that enlightened stock-breeders all over the world have introduced British pedigree cattle for the improvement of their stock, and, besides the above, among the other famous breeds, the Devons, Shorthorns, Jerseys and British Friesians, there were plenty for the foreign cattle-man to choose from.

The horses exhibited numbered 353, not including those entered for the riding, jumping, and driving competitions. As was to be expected in England, the class for hunters was exceptionally impressive, while some of the draught-horses were of such enormous size and strength that one sympathises with the Canadian farmer who visiting England for the first time, rubbed his eyes at the sight of them and remarked, "when one horse isn't big enough for a job in Canada, we go and fetch one more. When one horse isn't big enough for a job in England, I guess you go and breed a bigger one."

There was the usual high standard in the classes for sheep, pigs, poultry and general farm produce, the exhibits numbering altogether 2,298, as against 2,025 last year. The show, which was open four days only, was visited by over 45,000 persons, which must be considered a good attendance in view of the fact that most counties and local organisations either are holding, or are busily preparing, their own individual agricultural shows in Great Britain at this time of the year.

Those Energetic Roosevelt's.

The first German Kaiser is supposed to have coined the phrase: "I have no time to be tired." Mrs. Roosevelt goes one better. "I should be ashamed to admit I was tired," she likes to say. She works sixteen hours a day, talks freely to journalists, and goes where she likes—even to films.

The other day she went to see the film version of "Cavalcade." Having lived in England during the Boer war she was enraptured. She sought to impart her enthusiasm to her husband and offered to take him to see the film the next evening.

The President was not to be tempted. His teeth showed pleasantly in the set smile of optimism as he replied, "I dare not see anything depressing just now."

A Hold-up in Regent-Street.

Mother and daughter after a shopping expedition were on their way home. Arrived at a busy crossing Mother issued the warning as they stepped off the pavement, "Now, pull up your socks." Little daughter promptly caused a traffic block by obediently stopping in the middle of the road to give an unnecessary tug at her socks, which were already at tight stretch. Next time Mother wishes daughter to keep her wits about her she will use a phrase less capable of literal interpretation.

Facts and Facts.

A leading European statesman declares that all the great pacts of post-war diplomacy could be divided into two categories. There were the very definite and positive agreements, which in practice meant nothing and came to nothing. In this category he placed the Kellogg Pact and the Lausanne No-More-Forces declaration.

And there were the agreements of so vague and innocent a character that in theory they meant nothing and in practice everything. Of such, apparently, was the Rome Pact as conceived by Signor Mussolini.

While this document remained in its transparently innocent original form it was enthusiastically welcomed by France, Poland and the Little Entente.

New Knight's Style.

Says a Home Gossip Writer, discussing birthday honours:—I am a little curious to know whether we are now to speak of Sir John, Sir Jack, or Sir J. C. Squire. His first book was signed "Jack Collings Squire," but for many years he has used only the bare initials.

"It is, as a matter of fact, a point on which he has strong views. His great friend, Edmund Gosse, thought he should use a more picturesque signature, and surprised, but did not shake, him by the dedication of a book to 'John C. Squire.'"
"I remember him in earlier days discussing the probable effects of a knighthood. He decided that on the one hand it would send up one's hotel bills, but that, on the other, it would make it easier to get and keep servants."

Sir Harry Preston.

To be called "Sir Harry" will be no strange thing to this veteran sportsman; his friends have nicknamed him thus for years. He has retaliated handsomely by calling them all "My Lord."

There is not much about Harry that is not common knowledge, although many people will learn with surprise that he began his career as a school teacher at Lewisham, and with even greater surprise that he stunk it for three years. His consolation was amateur boxing in the evenings, and one of these bouts resulted in a cauliflower ear of such terrifying appearance that Harry took it to Charing Cross Hospital.

The house surgeon, before carrying out repairs, made a plaster cast of the cauliflower ear as a curiosity, and informed Harry when they met 40 years later that he still used it as a paper-weight.

THE WATER SUPPLY

Extension of Hours

FOR KOWLOON AND THE CITY

Owing to the heavy rains of the last few days the Government is able to redeem the conditional promise, issued last Thursday, to extend the hours of the supply of water, from to-day as follows:—

From 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m.

That part of the City lying West of Garden and Murray Roads, and bounded on the South by Upper Albert Road, Caine Road, Lyttleton Road, the University and Pokfulam Road.

Kowloon and New Kowloon.

As regards the Island the area receiving an extended supply are those which can be served either from the Mainland, through the cross-harbour pipe, or from Aberdeen and Pokfulam reservoirs which are filling well. An extended service to the Island will be considered when the storage in the main reservoirs permits.

LEGAL CRITICISMS
AGAINST NANKINGFOR FAILURE TO DECLARE
STATE OF WAR

Canton, June 27.

Legal criticisms against the Nanking Government for failure to declare a formal state of war existing between China and Japan are entertained by the South-West authorities despite the Tangku truce, through which, it is believed here, the Japanese will utilize to establish another puppet state in the Peiping area with the assistance of Li Chi Chun and other "Manchukuo" irregulars.

Declaring that Nanking's refusal to recognize actual state of war has everything to lose but nothing to gain, a leading member of the South-West Political Council today analysed that there should be no fear of Japan's repeating in "intra-mural" China what the Japanese army has already perpetrated in Manchuria and Jehol, nor should there be fear that "since war originates in juridical rights, the Japanese will be able to validate their illegalities in China by military victory."

Open Conquest of China.

The open conquest of China proper in a "declared" war, he believes, would cause the "decisive protest and positive intervention" of Britain, America, France and Soviet Russia, provided Chinese diplomacy is skillfully manipulated. He explained that war is no longer a source of juridical rights by virtue of the League Covenant and the Anti-War Pact, and it can be laid down that a war of aggression or initiated as an instrument of national policy—such as waged by Japan against China on Chinese soil—is illegal in the sense that it cannot acquire the juridical character of a war known to International Law, and consequently such a war cannot validate international delinquencies and war crimes perpetrated by a victorious state.

Analysing the legal consequences, this authority on international law added:—

"It is plain—and this point must be particularly stressed—that the so-called 'undeclared' war, which Japan has been conducting against China, during the last eighteen months, has enabled Japan to secure all the advantages which a 'declared' war would yield her without incurring or provoking the effective intervention of the Foreign Powers with vital interests in China and the Far East. In other words Japan has been able and will continue to be able to extend her territorial conquest in China and sever Chinese territory through the machinery of this 'undeclared war' without risking a repetition of the Three-Powers intervention in the Linchuan case in 1925."—Associated Press.

SUPPORT FOR

TANGKU TRUCE

Central Press.

CANTON, June 27.

Thirty-nine ranking commanders in Chahar province have issued a circular telegram supporting General Feng Yu Hsiang, commander-in-chief of the "People's" Anti-Japanese Allied Forces, according to their message received here today.

The telegram pointed out that since September 18, 1931, the Nanking authorities had never effectively resisted the Japanese with the result that town after town in the northeast was lost to the Japanese. The 39 generals all oppose the Tangku truce which is regarded as a pact of surrender to the Japanese.—Central Press.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

London, June 27.

Reuter understands that following a midnight summons to Holland, Switzerland, France and Germany to participate with representatives of Central Banks, European gold standard countries held an important secret meeting at 9.30 a.m. when they discussed the situation with particular reference to recent movements of certain European currencies.

It was unanimously decided not to question the above countries abandoning the gold standard, but it was agreed that the French representative urge Mr. R. MacDonald to declare himself against any further departure from gold.

AN INTERESTING DEVELOPMENT

London, June 27.

There was a most interesting development at the World Economic Conference this morning by the adoption of a resolution by the Monetary Technical Sub-Committee in favour of the excluding of gold in currency and gold certificates from internal circulation, also advocating a uniform gold cover for Central Banks not exceeding twenty-five per cent. But such elasticity not to be used as a pretext for unduly increasing the volume of notes and credits. The resolution will be submitted to the second Sub-Committee.

AMERICAN VIEW ON WORLD RECOVERY

[REUTER AND BRITISH WIRELESS.]

LONDON, June 26.

Private meetings were held today of the six sub-committees in which the work of the World Conference is proceeding.

At a public meeting of the sub-committee dealing with the immediate monetary and financial measures, Mr. Neville Chamberlain referred to the need demonstrated by recent experience for adequate safeguards in addition to the re-establishment of confidence in the internal stability of Europe before normal international lending could be resumed.

But the immediate problem was not fresh lending but the repayment of loans already made. Destruction of confidence had actually reversed the flow of capital and this coupled with the fall in prices had led to the present difficulty.

A general rise in world prices might materially improve the situation to the advantage of the debtor but there were some cases where temporary adjustments might be necessary to assist the debtors to fulfil their external engagements as far as possible in the existing circumstances.

No Universal Rule.

No universal rule could be applied. The natural method of procedure was negotiation between the debtors who knew their own difficulties and the creditors whose assent was required to any derogation of their rights.

These difficulties frequently arose because there was no one who could speak with authority in the negotiations with creditors.

In Britain since 1899, they had such an organisation in the Council of Foreign Bondholders which had successfully dealt with debts amounting to many millions.

The question of obtaining statutory authority for such an organisation must rest with each Government concerned.

No Rigid Procedure.

He argued that Governments of the various countries should encourage the creation of such organisations where they did not exist, but conditions varied so much as between different debtor countries and as between different classes of creditors that he would deprecate any attempt to lay down a rigid procedure. Nothing in nature of an arbitrary body would be acceptable but an authoritative and an impartial body which could give advice was wanted. He moved the matter be referred for careful detailed consideration by drafting committee.

Senator Couzens' View.

Senator Couzens (United States) said he did not believe prices could be raised by monetary means alone nor did he believe that prices could or should be raised sufficiently to effect an equilibrium with the structure of debt now existing. Prices must be raised and the United States was acting on that conviction through measures to increase purchasing power.

Enterprise would not recover its courage until given a lead from governments. The United States in undertaking the largest programme of public works in history would energise production and consumption everywhere.

The adoption of such a policy by other countries in concert with America would exert a steady influence on foreign exchanges. At the same time the burden of debts must be lightened. This was not an invitation to those able to pay to scale down their obligations, still less was it an invitation to default. But it emphasises the necessity for organising creditors throughout the world and of establishing some permanent body to act in an advisory capacity between organised creditors and organised debtors and to study by what means the necessary adjustments might be effected with the minimum of delay and injustice.

Senator Couzens expressed the opinion that the increased demand for raw materials induced by the American construction programme would offer far more hope for world recovery than a reduction of tariff duties on a number of highly competitive manufactured articles.

ed that the report of Shigemitsu's appointment as Japanese Minister to China and the recall of Arita was unfounded. He said Arita has at present no intention of returning to Japan or leaving for Peiping.

H.M. THE KING LAYS FOUNDATION STONEFOR NEW UNIVERSITY OF
LONDON BUILDING

[REUTER AND BRITISH WIRELESS.]

LONDON, June 27.

WITH imposing ceremonial, the presence of a distinguished gathering, including representatives of seats of learning in many parts of the world, His Majesty the King, accompanied by H.M. the Queen and attended by Lord Irwin, Minister for Education, laid the foundation stone of the new University of London buildings in Bloomsbury, yesterday afternoon.

Their Majesties drove through the streets, in an open landau, with an escort of Household Cavalry.

The vast new building, which will serve as the centre of the largest University in the world, has been designed by Charles Holden. It will take 60 years to complete.

The King, in acknowledging the loyal address, recalled that the University, which had completed a century of distinguished and honoured life, had waited a long time for its home, and he rejoiced to see the beginning of a finely planned group of buildings which would serve as headquarters for her far reaching work and influence.

"I count it of good omen, that in these difficult times, we have an opportunity of showing unshaken faith in the inestimable benefits of knowledge and education."

The site which covers 10½ acres, was acquired largely by the generosity of the Rockefeller Foundation.

BOYCOTT AGAINST
C.N.C.SEAMEN'S UNION APPEALS
FOR HELP

CANTON, June 27.

A representative of the Swatow Seamen Union has arrived here to confer with officials of the Canton Seamen Union on steps to enforce a prolonged boycott against steamers of the China Navigation Company, Ltd.

The Kwangtung Seamen Union has issued a fourth circular message appealing for public support of the strikers because of the alleged mistreatment of Chinese seamen employed aboard C.N.C. vessels. The message said that the C.N.C. made considerable profits in China through the labour of Chinese seamen. Instead of treating them well, the company oppressed the Chinese workers.

Pickets station around the wharf of the China Navigation Co. to prevent any loading or unloading of cargo from steamers of that company. A temporary dining hall was housed in a nearby shed where the strikers have their meals and even lodgings.

The local seamen are resentful against the complicity of the river steamer Tin Yat on the Canton-Hong Kong run, because he passed on rumours to the Hong Kong police whereby several Chinese seamen were arrested in that colony. The seamen here do not wish to drag Hong Kong into this matter, but there is talk of boycotting the Tin Yat which is a Chinese-owned steamer flying the British flag.—Central Press.

FOR IMPROVEMENT

FARMERS

CANTON, June 27.

General Chen Chi Tang has granted $10,000 to the farmers in Chichin for the improvement of agriculture. This is to assist in maintaining the livelihood of the farmers who were afflicted by the Communists and bandits.

These unruly elements were swept clean by troops of the second army. The farmers who ran away during the Red regime returned to Chichin only to find that their fields were barren and their farming implements were gone.

Hence General Chen believes that a government subsidy will help the farmers to stand on their feet again.—Central Press.

CANTON, June 27.

Chased by the Cantonese forces, the Communists in southern Kiangsi have fled to the Fikien borders. The anti-Communist forces from Kwangtung are further augmented by the dispatch of the entire strength of the third army to southern Kiangsi.

The 6th division of the third army has taken Chumun and are welcomed by the populace. Chumun is also one of the strongholds of the Communists. BRITAIN WIN
FORESOMESMAGNIFICENT PLAY
BY BURKE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, June 27.

Britain beat America by 2½ wins to 1½ in the Ryder Cup foursomes at Southport yesterday. The eight singles matches will be played to-day.

In missing an 18-inch putt on the last hole Percy Allis robbed Britain of a win over the powerful Sarazen-Hagen combination. Dornie one at the eighteenth Allis surprised the big gallery by missing what looked an absurdly easy putt. Had he done what was expected of him Britain would now be leading by 3 to 1.

Magnificent all-round play by Tommy Burke robbed Alfred Perry and Alfred Padgham of a clean out win and was responsible for the only American triumph.

Abe Mitchell and Syd Easterbrook were the leading players in the two British victories.

Allis and Whitcombe had an aggregate of 149 for the two rounds. Sarazen and Hagen returned a similar score.

Mitchell and Havers had 136 for 34 holes against 145 by Dutra and Shute game.

Padgham and Perry recorded 149 as against 150 by Dudley and Burke. Davies and Easterbrook returned an aggregate of 153, while Wood and Runyan had 154.

Second Round.

A slight breeze sprung up for the second round. Gene Sarazen pushed out his first tee shot, but Walter Hagen made a great recovery to halve the hole.

Perry Allis' approach shot was short at the second and the Americans took the hole. At the third Hagen's approach was short and Sarazen's chip shot was wide, the British pair winning the hole in 4.

Charles Whitcombe's approach at the fourth was a glorious effort, but the Americans secured a half. At the sixth Sarazen holed a 6-yarder to snatch the hole in dramatic style. A hooked drive by Sarazen, however, lost the eighth and at the end of the ninth the British pair were three up.

The scores were:—
Britain..... 2 5 4 4 5 4 3 5
U.S.A..... 3 4 5 4 4 5 4 4

At the tenth Whitcombe was bunkered and the hole lost. At the eleventh Whitcombe was again in trouble, missing an 18-inch putt to lose the hole. At the seventeenth the British pair were, however, dornie one.

Men and women who realize that appearance counts always have well-polished shoes.

JACK PETERSEN, Britain's leading heavyweight boxer, won the first of his three exhibition bouts in Wales last night when he outpointed George Cook, the Australian champion, over fifteen rounds at Cardiff.

Petersen, who accepted an offer of £2,500 to appear in three bouts in Wales, knocked out Heine Muller, the German champion, in 130 seconds in his most recent fight.

He is to meet Jack Doyle on July 5 in what promises to be the best bout London has seen.

Lawn Bowls

It was not a bit surprising to me to see both the Kowloon Bowling Green and the Club de Recreio, league leaders in the first division beaten last Saturday when playing away from home, as a matter of fact these two teams had been singularly fortunate up till then, in that all their engagements had been on the home ground. The Club de Recreio's game with the Kowloon Docks on Saturday was their first away game and they went down fairly heavily. Luz's rink were 11 points ahead of Brown's but what a tremendous difference there was between Lapsley four and Marques four. Lapsley finished up 21 points ahead. Cullen and his men found Silva's rink fairly easy to handle and had little difficulty in getting the verdict by 13 points.
This is the first away game in which the Recreio has figured this season and if the result is any criterion to go by than the Portuguese team will not be much of a danger to the present champions, the Craigengower C.C.

It is true that rain interfered twice with the games at Happy Valley between the Police and Craigen-gower and the Civil Service and the Bowling Green. Both matches were of great importance to the league and the Civil Service certainly asserted themselves when they sent the Bowling Green away defeated by sixteen points. Holland's rink was the only one to win for the Bowling Green and then he did it by one point. Grimmit and Phillips for the Civil Service both played well and I shall be interested to follow the former's progress through the singles championship this year. He is in fine form just now.

Craigen-gower were all out to win from the Police on Saturday and although the Police were playing on the home ground, the League Champions had little difficulty in getting full points. Bass's rink is still the weak point in the team though there does not seem to be any reason for this being the case, as the individual members of the team are among the best of Craigengower players. Bunchman and Beer being selected to represent that Club in the Spey Royal. Omar, from the score appeared, to have had a fairly easy time, winning by eleven shots while Bradbury also won by the same margin.

What's wrong with the K.C.C.?
Anyone making a forecast would have predicted a win for them against Taikoo, but they lost and lost heavily. Wotherpoon played a great game and time after time baffled Hyde-Lay with his last wood. At one time I thought Tai-koo was going to be the wooden spongers this season, but it looks very much as if Kowloon C.C. are going to deprive them of that unwanted honour this time.

This week-end, the International Competition will be played on the K.C.C. rinks. Four games are on the schedule and there should be plenty of interest in the fate of the nationals! The English are due to meet the Portuguese and if you ask me this will be easily the best contest of the day. Scotland will not be far behind in these contests, but I do not think much of the chances of Wales. They are due to meet India in the first round and it is more than probable that they will not survive that round. India has a very strong side and is likely to figure in the final, and I would not be a bit surprised to see them win.
The Philippine Islands have entered a team but will be lucky to survive the first round.

Aquatics
Frayed tempers in a water polo game are nothing uncommon
although there can be a bit too much of it. The Hong Kong International Swimming Association's goals on Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A. was a distinct success, and but for the unfortunate incidents in the water polo game towards the end of the programme, everything went well. As nothing hinges on the result of what was obviously a friendly encounter, it is to be hoped that in future such games will be played in a more friendly spirit. The impression seems to be prevalent among some players that rough play is part of water polo,
but this is certainly not the case,
and some of the best players I have seen in water polo matches are those who pay no attention whatever to what is called (very aptly,
I think) "dirty play". In all games conducted with the utmost fairness, accidents will happen,
and it would be better in a friendly water polo game to treat any instance of rough play as an accident and not to seek retaliation. Any player who is certainly infringing the rules will soon find himself out of the bath and there is really no call to "duck" him or in any way make him realise the folly of his ways.

Miss Yeung Sau King is certainly going to set new records this year, judging from the excellent form she displayed on Saturday.
She won the 100 and 50 yards and was only just beaten in the breast stroke event. She also figured in the ladies' team race. When the political troubles of China calm down a little, and the nation has a little more time to think of sport,
Miss Yeung Sau King will probably burst forth as China's greatest lady swimmer. In an All-China meeting, it would be interesting to see how she fare, and if China should be sending a team to the next Olympics, Miss Yeung will have a chance of comparing her talents with the women of other countries. Admittedly she will not figure too prominently in such a contest, but the experience would do her a lot of good, as it did the Japanese swimming team some twelve years ago, as witness their success in aquatics at Los Angeles last year!

Lawn Tennis

Tuesday last week being too wet for play, only seven "O" Division and three Mixed Doubles games were completed.

On Thursday the matches played provided no surprises, the fancied team in every case winning. I notice many of the "O" teams
do not appear to have been settled.
For instance, the C.R.A. Radio match many of the players were new-comers. In this respect the Indian R.C. and the Chinese R.C. seem to be better off than the other teams, both having decided on their combinations fairly early and have stuck to their men once chosen.
Two notable absentees from the
I.R.C. team this season are M. P.
Madar, who has not played at all and A. H. Sufiad, who has participated in only one game. Madar, who has not been in good health for quite a long time, is not likely to play this season and the Indians will thus be deprived of one of their most experienced men, while Sufiad, I understand, is to play for the "B."

The Chinese, barring upsets, are almost certain to win the Shield.
Their team is a very strong one,
all three pairs being of about the same strength, Y. K. Mow and T.
W. Lau being the strongest. Kowloon, who beat the Indians a fortnight ago are their nearest rivals
but I do not think the peninsula team is capable of defeating them.

On Friday the Indian R.C. continued their practice of providing surprises. Playing away, they were easily beaten by Kowloon. For the winners E. O. Fincher and Miss Olivia Dalziel once again were in fine form although they did not get the best results of their side. They had a somewhat remarkable record in the match. They only lost six games but these were all in the same set. Miss Rumjahn and her brother "H.D." who beat them, played very well and at one time looked as if they would take all their three sets, but after leading against E. F. Fincher and Mrs.
Hamby they slowed down and eventually lost the set at the twelfth game. Miss Griffith made a welcome re-appearance, and, with A. E. P. Guest as her partner, had a drawn record in the match.

Though without the services of Mrs. Enid Linton, the Chinese R.C.
were too good for the L.R.C. Tsui Wai Pui and Mrs. Chui were in magnificent form. In the whole match they gave away only six games. Tsui seems to have improved a lot this season, a marked feature of his play being the accuracy of his driving; and he manages to maintain the speed of his services for a longer time than before. Mr. and Mrs. Ho Ka Lau, pairing together in Mrs. Ho's first appearance this season, were very successful, winning two and drawing one set.

The Chinese are a very strong combination with Tsui and Mrs.
Chui as perhaps their best pair and with the Indians already defeating twice, they have only one serious rival, the United Services Recreation Club. The latter have already shown by their win over the Indians two weeks ago and by their crushing defeat over the Re-creio last week that they are a force

TRAVELLING VIA
SIBERIAReduced Fares and More Safety

Harbin, June 9.—For the past three weeks the Siberian expresses from Europe have been running on schedule time, both passengers and mails being transferred promptly at Manchuk station and arriving at the minute at Harbin, setting at rest rumours that it is dangerous for foreigners to travel across Siberia.

It is noticeable that the trains from Harbin to Europe during the past fortnight have been taking more passengers than for a long time, this being accounted for, firstly, by the fact that the fare has become cheaper owing to the decline in the American dollar, payment for travelling through Soviet Russia having to be made in this currency. Thus it may be reckoned that the fare has been reduced by fully 30 per cent. owing to the drop in the exchange.

Secondly, the arrival of passengers from Europe in Japan and in southern towns of China, who have crossed Siberia with perfect safety has given confidence to those people who wish to travel by this very quick route.

The railway line from Changchun to Harbin is very strongly guarded by Japanese and Mongol troops and the western line from Harbin to Manchuk is also guarded by similar troops, attempts made by bandits during the last two weeks on the trains of this line having been repulsed without any damage to the train or passengers.

The situation in Harbin itself has also very much improved, as the police are taking very strong measures to drive all suspicious persons out of the town and opportunities for bandits in Harbin itself have very considerably decreased. The murder of Mrs. Woodruff has entirely subsided and foreigners are going about the town at all hours of the day without fear of being attacked.

Amongst the passengers who are booked to travel via Siberia to Europe during the next few days is the German Ambassador to Japan, and on the same train several other foreigners have also taken berths.

The mails are being delivered with absolute precision taking not more than 12 days from London to Harbin which is equal to the best time recorded by this route.—
N.C. Daily News.

to be reckoned with, but I do not think that they will be able to retain the Shield they won so deservedly last year. The meeting between these two clubs will be well worth watching and the result will probably settle the destination of the Shield.

MRS. PEARL BUCK An American Tribute A MISSIONARY TO THE OCCIDENT

Mrs. Pearl S. Buck has resigned as a missionary of the Presbyterian Church. Resignations by missionaries are not unprecedented—several are noted in the New Testament—but since Mrs. Buck has been perhaps the best-known American missionary stationed in China it is natural that national attention should have been drawn to her withdrawal from her connections with the Presbyterian Mission Board. The decision has been entirely Mrs. Buck's; good will and good sense have apparently marked every step in the process.

In one sense, Mrs. Buck has been less a missionary herself than the wife of a missionary. It is her husband, Dr. J. Lossing Buck, who has been doing the work in China to which the casual observer would be most likely to attach the label "missionary." Even in the case of Professor Buck it is true that his distinguished services as dean of the college of agriculture in the University of Nanking do not follow the pattern of what was commonly regarded as missionary work a generation ago. Mrs. Buck has herself taught regularly in the university.

But it has not been as a teacher in a mission college that Pearl Buck has become internationally famed. It is as the writer of novels, now translated into a dozen or more languages, that she has gained the attention of the world.

What has given Mrs. Buck's books their importance? Much of the answer is to be found in the study of her literary method. The child of missionaries in China, Mrs. Buck has never ceased to keep herself immersed in Chinese life. Chinese have been her intimates; she has not known Chinese life; she has lived Chinese life. Added to that, she has saturated her mind with Chinese literature—not the stiff, academic philosophizings of the sages, but the racy, vivid romances that make up an entire school of Chinese literature which the West scarcely knows exists.

Thus it happened that when the West found its ear caught by the cadences of the style in which Mrs. Buck wrote "The Good Earth," it declared that her missionary background had sent her to the Old Testament for her model. Yet what had actually occurred was that Mrs. Buck, thinking her tale of Wang the farmer in the forms of the Chinese novel, had accurately translated into English that traditional Chinese style.

It is in such an incident that the importance of Mrs. Buck as a true missionary is to be discerned. For the thing that she has been able to do is to get at the very heart of another culture, and then put down on paper, for the benefit of those forever otherwise debarred, enough of the essence of what she found there to give a reasonably coherent and accurate understanding to her readers.

If there are 1,000,000 readers of her books—and the estimate is probably too low—it is possible to say that there are probably at least 1,000,000 more westerners who will never think of China or the Chinese again without sympathy and some sense of oneness. That is missionary service of inestimable value toward the building of that brotherhood to which the churches are dedicated—Christian Science Monitor.

FARM LIFE IN THE NEW TERRITORIES

HARD WORK AND CONTENTED MINDS

(By OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

To the average European, or even to most of the older Hong Kong residents, farm life in the New Territories means very little. The younger people might think such a life can only have one meaning—that it implies living in obscurity, remote from civilization, with nothing to interest one, and, what is even worse still, just one dull round of monotony without any form of pleasure.

Perhaps it would be as well if I confessed here that I thought the same myself, until quite recently when I paid a visit to one of these little farms. By little farms, I refer, only to the homestead, for the grounds or I should perhaps say land, are big enough, and I was very surprised with what I saw.

Arriving in this place early in the morning, I was greeted with the sight of an almost empty cottage. There was nobody in with the exception of a little girl who upon seeing me shouted for her mother very excitedly. At 7 p.m., by the way, means grandmother in Chinese, and very soon an aged lady came out to see what was amiss. I soon put the good woman at ease and we got on quite friendly terms as I speak Cantonese fluently and soon she was telling me all about farm life.

The rest of the family was out ploughing and tilling the land and attending to the very many things that call for daily attention. There are no shirkers on a Chinese farm and anybody who does not pull his or her weight very soon hears all about it. "Father" goes out early and he is closely followed by "mother" and the rest. All of them have their own part of the field to look after and if one happens to finish work sooner than the rest, he or she does not rest, but goes and sees what help can be given to the others.

In this particular farm, the people were most concerned with the cultivation of rice, and although I did not stop to listen to all the kind old soul had to say, I gathered that this job was not by any means an easy one.

Far away at one end of the field, I saw a little animal running about and from a distance I thought it was a full grown Alsatian dog, but when I got closer I found that it was the latest addition to the stock, in the shape of a nice little calf. She was very shy, and all my attempts at getting close to her proved futile. This calf was only a week old but she was already a great favourite as I could see by the way the family fussed over her whenever they could spare a few minutes.

Ducks and Hens.

About twenty or thirty yards away from the house was a fair sized pond, not very deep, and here I saw a sight that would bring joy to anybody's heart. There must have been a hundred ducklings swimming about, making a good deal of noise as they chased each other and washed their heads in the water in their search for food. They looked very healthy birds, and plenty of trouble is taken over them as they fetch very good prices when fit for the market.

Not far from this pond was what may be called the chicken run, but this enclosure was rather on the primitive side though it served its purpose quite well. All sorts of fowls were in this enclosure and when I asked if there were any chickens, I was taken to yet another "reservation" where a few hundred chickens were strutting about without a single care in the world.

New laid eggs are always very desirable and the only trouble about them is that one never knows when one is buying a pig-in-a-poke.

when sending out for them, but out here in the farm, one can safely pay for them without any fear of being given "counterfeits." While on this subject, let it be known that the average New Territory farmer is no longer the "country bumpkin" that he was a few years ago. He knows on which side his bread is buttered, and any effort to get his goods from him at an unfair (to his mind) price would be met with a very firm but at the same time polite request for "mistake to get his requirements elsewhere." I tried to buy half-a-dozen eggs cheaply but was told that if I wanted cheap eggs, I should not have taken the trouble to go out to the country, for such eggs could very well have been obtained in the city!

Those Modern Mixers!

Reverting to the old lady mentioned in the opening passages of this article, she proudly told me that she was seventy-four years of age but she had never seen what the inside of a cinema was like, and during the whole of that four-and-seventy years, she had only been to Hong Kong once and even then, her visit to "that big city" was only a short one. She said that she was told that Chinese girls were now getting to be more and more like their western sisters, and she greatly deprecated this saying that unless the women kept their places properly, that would be the ruination of a very grand nation!

These farmer folk live a very simple life but they seemed very healthy and although they do not appear to take much interest in anything other than their work during working hours, they are not the same people, once they have finished for the day. They then sit about in the open and taken part in impromptu concerts (with their own instruments, or course) and generally make merry till as late as 8.30 or 9 p.m. when "lights out" is sounded and then the place is thrown into darkness, and quiet reigns till the first streaks of dawn when once again the place is thrown into activity.

5,000 HEROIN PILLS

"Too Innocent,"
Defendant Heavily Fined

OCCUPANTS OF DOCK BLAME EACH OTHER

A charge of unlawful possession of five thousand pills of heroin was preferred against three Chinese men, Leung Wui, Chan Yan and Lo So, and one Chinese woman, Leung Lor Chi at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Revenue Officer R. A. Trengrove, prosecuting, said that on the 20th inst. he raided No. 11, Argyle Street, 1st floor. In the first cubicle he entered he saw the first defendant cleaning a pipe, and the third and fourth defendants smoking opium. On making a search of the place he found the pills, which were in four bags and some cigarette tins. He questioned the inmates and was told by the first and fourth defendants that the pills belonged to the third. Lo So, however, declared that the second defendant was the owner of the place and that he was merely employed by him. The latter denied this, stating that the pills had been given him by the third defendant. R. O. Trengrove further said that he found certain rent-receipts which proved that Leung Wui first defendant, was the principal tenant of the place.

After one of the Chinese officers who took part in the raid had given corroborative evidence, Mr. F. X. d'Almada Jr., on behalf of the first defendant, submitted that there was no evidence at all to show that his client was mixed up in the business. He maintained that all that was proved was that he was in charge of the place and that at the time the raid took place he happened to be cleaning a pipe, but that did not prove that he knew anything about the pills. As for the board advertising that pills could be had at the place (this had been produced at an earlier stage of the proceedings) the notice might have referred to any sort of pills.

On Mr. Butters' failing to agree with him, Mr. d'Almada put his client in the box. There Leung Wui denied knowledge of everything. He said that the pills were found in the woman's box that he knew nothing of them, nor of the pipes, nor of the notice-board.

Mr. Butters did not believe him and fined him and the woman $250 each, with the alternative of going to prison for three months. The third defendant was fined $100, or six weeks' imprisonment in default, and the fourth was discharged. His Worship remarking that all he could see was that the man had been smoking opium there at the time.

An order for the confiscation of the pills was also made.

THREE JAPANESE FISHERMEN SHOT

TOKYO'S PROTEST TO SOVIET

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

MOSCOW, June 27.
THE Japanese Ambassador here, Mr. Ohta, has visited the acting Foreign Commissar M. Sokolnikov, and protested against the alleged shooting dead of three Japanese fishermen in the region of Cape Kronotsky, Kamchatka.

Mr. Ohta asked permission for the secretary to the Japanese Consulate at Petropavlovsk to proceed to the spot by torpedo boat to ascertain the facts.

M. Sokolnikov declared that he had no information regarding the incident but if Mr. Ohta's information was right, the guilty would be punished.

He rejected the proposal regarding the secretary of the Japanese Consulate, but agreed to the voyage of the secretary on a civil ship. The Soviet local authorities have been ordered to immediately investigate the affair.

Subsequent news that a Japanese torpedo boat had entered Soviet waters and had landed on Soviet territory part of the crew, who explored the shore in the region of the incident, led to further conversation between Mr. Ohta and M. Sokolnikov yesterday, when M. Sokolnikov stated that there was no Soviet frontier guard in the region of Cape Kronotsky.

Therefore the Soviet were most perplexed at the report of the incident.

He reiterated his assurance regarding the punishment of the guilty, but protested against the action of the Japanese torpedo boat.

He denied the Japanese statement that the Japanese Embassy in Moscow had informed the Foreign Commissariat about the dispatch of the man-of-war.

RYDER CUP GOLF

At the eighteenth hole Percy Allis' second shot was bunkered while Sarazen was on the green with his second. Whitcombe recovered magnificently, placing his ball 18 inches from the pin. Allis, however, missed the putt and Hagen was "dead" with his third.

The scores were:
Britain 5 5 4 4 4 3 6 4 5
U.S.A. 4 4 4 4 4 3 5 5 4

Mitchell and Havers Win.

Abie Mitchell, the longest driver in the British Isles, played a great iron shot at the second hole the ball coming to rest two feet from the pin to give the British pair an easy hole.

At the third Dutra hit the pin with his approach and Shute missed a three-foot putt to enable the British pair to halve the hole. At the sixth Mitchell missed a four-foot putt to lose the hole.

At the seventh Dutra was stymied and the visitors lost the hole. At the eighth Shute holed an 8-yarder for a 2 and the hole. The British pair however, halved the ninth and were then 4 up.

Score.
Britain 4 3 4 4 4 5 4 3 5
U.S.A. 4 6 4 4 4 4 5 2 5
The British pair virtually settled the match at the fifteenth with a "birdie" two.

Match Decided on Last Green.

Syd Easterbrook's first tee shot was a beauty, landing four yards from the pin to give him and W. H. Davies the hole in 2 Runyan, however, holed a perfect shot from the edge of the green to give the Americans the second.

At the ninth the British pair were one up.

Score.
Britain 2 5 4 3 4 4 5 3 5
U.S.A. 3 4 4 4 4 5 5 3 4
A pair four at the eighteenth by the Americans saved the match but a half at the final hole gave Britain the match.

Burke and Dudley's Fine Recovery.

Burke holed a five yarder at the second to secure the hole, and, after Dudley and Alfred Perry had driven into the same bunker at the fourth, he brought off a fine chip shot to secure the second American hole.

Burke played brilliant golf. At the fifth he holed a stymie to secure another hole.

At the ninth the match was all square.

Britain 3 5 4 5 4 5 4 3 5
U.S.A. 3 4 4 4 4 3 4 5 3 4

Alfred Padgham and Perry were one up and three to play, but the Americans squared the match with a birdie four at the sixteenth, and took the lead for the first time since the sixth hole of the first round at the seventeenth.

Burke and Dudley secured another birdie and halved the last hole to record America's lone triumph. It was a magnificent recovery.

Machines were later open to the inspection of the guests, who were deeply impressed with the exhibition.

NEW DUTIES IN EAST AFRICA

IMPERIAL PREFERENCE
NOW MADE POSSIBLE

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

NAIROBI, June 27.
THE inability of East Africa to impose Imperial Preference tariffs in view of her various Treaties, will to some extent be overcome as the result of new tariffs introduced yesterday, whereby a specific rate, or an alternative ad valorem duty, is imposed, whichever is the higher.

For example, low priced foreign cotton goods dumped here are to pay the same duties as the higher priced Manchester goods.

A similar course is being taken regarding other articles.

SPANISH AIRMEN FOUND

DEAD AMID WRECKAGE

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

NEW YORK, June 27.
IT is now confirmed that the bodies of the Spanish flyers, Captain Barberan and Lieutenant Collart, have been found amid the wreckage of their plane, 100 miles west of Carmen, Campeachy, Mexico.

The two airmen left Seville for Havana on June 10 in an attempt to beat the British R.A.F. long-distance flight record. After successfully crossing the Atlantic, they disappeared.

In recent years the duties of the directors have become so multifarious and heavy that there have been some members on every committee who have found it necessary to attend one or the other of the three hospitals daily, sometimes twice a day, without the break of a single day, throughout their term of office. Such a record of devoted service should be better known to the public, and deserves its gratitude. But exacting as are these duties, the Tung Wah has always been able to induce the right type of men—most of them very busy men—to undertake them, and I am confident that it will be equally fortunate in the future, so proud are the Chinese of the institution, and so keen are they to serve it.

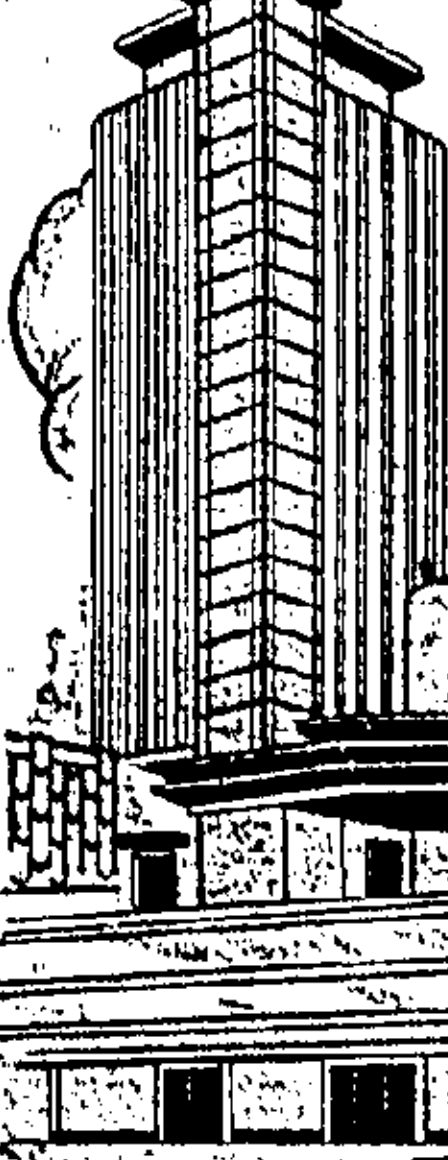

I believe I am correct in saying that no institution in Hong Kong is better known or more highly esteemed outside the Colony than the Tung Wah Hospital. In all parts of the world "where Chinese are to be found, the Tung Wah is known, and its name commands confidence. So implicitly do the Overseas Chinese trust the Tung Wah that time and again they have remitted to it large sums of money for disbursements in China; and these Overseas Chinese keep on sending and entrusting to the Tung Wah all sorts of things to which they attach a sentimental value, from dead relatives in coffin or urns, to live relatives in distress, right down to pet parrots in cages.

Rotarian M. K. Lo has suggested that the Rotary Club might undertake the task of making a comprehensive survey of community service in the Colony. That is a splendid suggestion. Let us make his talk of this afternoon the first of a series of papers on the main subject, and let other good Rotarians follow his good example. Perhaps Rotarian McPherson will oblige us with a talk on the Y.M.C.A. Perhaps other Rotarians who may not care to give a talk themselves, may induce some ladies to enlighten us on the Y.W.C.A., the Helena May Institute, and the one-month-old Women's International Club.

My good friend Rotarian Shou-shon Chow—now that he is no longer on the Legislative Council—may feel inclined to tell us—to tell you—the Chinese community is represented or, as some of you may prefer to call it, misrepresented on that much-abused body. And then, getting closer home Rotarian M. F. Key may like to give us what seems still to be necessary, a talk on the ideals and activities of the Hong Kong Rotary Club.

Now, permit me, on behalf of all present, to express warmest thanks to Rotarian M. K. Lo for a very informative and interesting paper.

BOW BELLS TO RING AGAIN

CONSECRATION NEXT MONTH

London, June 4.—Londoners will be delighted to hear that the famous bells of St. Mary-le-Bow are to be consecrated next month, after having been formally consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury on the afternoon of Friday, July 7. They have been silent for some time while the belfry which contains them has been thoroughly overhauled and extensively repaired.

"These bells at the present day number twelve in all, the largest being the "great bell of Bow," made familiar to us in our childhood by the old nursery rhyme. This is the tenor bell that was originally cast in 1689, and recast in 1738. It weighs 53 cwt., and, like the remainder of the peal, has just been returned and thoroughly overhauled.

"Bow Bells" date back long before the Great Fire of London in 1666 and the subsequent rebuilding of St. Mary's Church by Sir Christopher Wren. Originally these bells only numbered six, and it was upon these that was performed daily the celebrated "Whittington Chimes."

New Chimes.
About thirty years ago that eminent musician, Sir Villiers Stanford, composed a new set of quarter-hourly chimes, to be played upon the bells, and this will again be in use. These chimes were first heard in the autumn of 1903. When the bells are actually ringing, the chimes are automatically switched off.

The belfry that holds these historic bells is regarded by many as being Wren's masterpiece in this direction, and it has been said that if he had to be judged by this belfry and its surmounting spire alone, his fame would be secure, and he would be acclaimed as a master. He was fortunate in having ample funds at his disposal, a donation of £2,000 having been made for the purpose of this tower and steeple by the widow of a rich City merchant. Wren was therefore able to give full play to his imagination and originality of design to an extent that had not previously been possible.

The walls of the belfry tower are seven feet thick, and when digging down to a depth sufficient to ensure a safe foundation Wren was fortunate enough to encounter an ancient Roman causeway about eighteen feet below the level of the existing roadway. So solid was this that he had no hesitation in erecting his church and its tower upon it.

The spire surmounting the belfry is particularly graceful, and is borne upon a dome resting upon four massive corbels that spring from the angles of the belfry. The centre of the spire is composed of a cylinder of masonry nine inches in diameter. It is because it became imperative that the tower and its steeple should be thoroughly examined and the ravages of time repaired that "Bow Bells" have been mute for so long.

REDUCING IDLE SHIPPING

DETAILS OF TWO NEW PLANS

Details are now available of the two schemes recommended by a committee of the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom as a practical remedy for the world-wide depression in the cargo-carrying industry.

Under the first scheme old ships will be scrapped, while the second scheme provides for the temporary laying-up of redundant tonnage.

It is emphasized that in spite of the disastrous decline in world trade, international tonnage has even increased since 1929. Clearly, therefore, a reduction in tonnage supply is a condition precedent of any return to normal conditions in shipping.

The main points of the first scheme which is purely national in character, are as follows:

Owners would be under no compulsion to scrap their ships, and would be free to decide whether to take advantage of the scheme or not.

The scheme would be financed by dues collected on a net tonnage basis, from all national ships bringing cargoes into United Kingdom ports. The fund so created would be available for the purchase of vessels for scrapping.

Only vessels of 100 net tons and over would be affected, and special conditions would apply to passenger liners and tankers.

The scheme would not include any provision for replacement of tonnage.

A Disposal Board would be formed to determine the dates on which all ships handed over to it should be scrapped. This board would be empowered to pay all dues, &c., in connection with the laying-up of such vessels pending scrapping.

Laying-up Scheme

The second scheme concerns the laying-up of ships which may be required again if and when world trade improves. It postulates that laying-up can only be successful if undertaken internationally. Points of the scheme are:

No compulsion to lay up, owners being free to take advantage of the scheme or not, as they deem best.

Finance to be provided by uniform tonnage dues to be collected compulsorily from ships of all flags, through machinery of Government in each country adopting the scheme.

Compensation to be paid out of proceeds of tonnage dues to those managing or controlling tonnage laid up in accordance with the scheme.

The operation of the scheme would be controlled by a Central Committee of representatives appointed by the shipowners' associations in all countries.

JAPAN'S FOREIGN TRADE

OPTIMISM ENTERTAINED IN BUSINESS CIRCLES

Tokyo, June 21. An optimistic view is being entertained in Japanese business circles regarding the expected favourable trade results of the direct future, namely, during the present fiscal year.

Following the favourable trade balance of ¥10,610,000 registered during the second ten days of the present month, which was ¥4,000,000 more than that of the previous ten days, it is expected that there will be a slight reverse during the next ten days while it was predicted that the general future aspect of Japan's foreign trade during the remainder of the year will progress steadily.

The main factor for the favourable trend is attributed to the enormous increase in exports to Manchuria, in which there was an increase of not less than 400 per cent. during the first five months of this year, in comparison with 1932. Japan's exports to China likewise showed an increase, sixteen per cent. during the same period and the hope is entertained that, with the gradual disappearance of the anti-Japanese sentiment, business dealings with China will further increase.

Japan cannot expect any trade with India for the present while she cannot enjoy a good export trade with America so long as America maintains her inflation policy.

DRIFTER v. 27ft. SHARK

SCAPA FLOW BATTLE.

A fight with real "submarine craft" gave a realistic thrill to units of the Home Fleet on their return to Scapa Flow from "submarine attack exercises" in the North Sea.

The "enemy" units were four sharks which were encountered at Scapa Flow. One of them, about 27ft. long, was struck and injured by the drifter Muriel.

The vessel lurched from the impact. The shark, instead of retreating, gave battle.

It immediately wheeled about and launched itself against the hull, thrashing the side of the boat several times with its tail. The bangs sounded like gun shots, and were plainly heard by duty men on Scapa Pier, and by men on the other drifters, which immediately rushed to the Muriel's assistance.

Later the shark was seen to be bleeding and it rolled over and sank. Its three fellows made off rapidly.

A picket boat from the Malaya observed the battle and rushed to the rescue, but the fight was over before the craft reached the scene and received an "All's Well" signal.

Banking policy was being affected by national interests—the probable precursor of legal control in a greater or lesser degree. The possibility would be greater rather than less. Whereas a mere generation ago banks touched public life only through the medium of their individual customers, to-day they were a vital national function.

The question of credit facilities was not to-day one only of a private bargain between banker and customer; it was one of national responsibility and the direction of the flow of credit would be increasingly considered from the standpoint of national prosperity.

Also the rate of interest on deposits might, on occasion, in the future be varied by factors other than that of competition. The whole world is moving towards a closer control of the machine of economic, industrial, and financial power, and away from the policy of laissez-faire.

FRENCH BUDGET PASSED

SENATE VICTORY OVER OIL MONOPOLY.

PARIS, June 8.

The Budget for 1933 was finally passed at 8.45 this morning, after an all-night sitting, during which the measure made no fewer than six journeys between the Palais Bourbon and the Luxembourg in the efforts to arrive at an agreement between the Chamber and Senate.

Throughout the night Mr. Daladier, the Prime Minister, M. Lamoureux, the Budget Minister, and Mr. Bonnet, Minister of Finance, were engaged in negotiating fresh texts in order to smooth out the differences. In its final form the deficit was 3,625,000,000f. [£29,000,000 at par]. Agreement was achieved only after much splitting of differences and drafting of new forms of words designed to conform with tenaciously-held dogmas or to save faces.

Chief among the obstacles to agreement was the proposal to set up an oil monopoly commission, which was to report on the organization of a State monopoly of the import and refining of oil. From the first the Senate had raised an objection to the inclusion of the proposal in a Finance Bill, and its objection became all the stronger when it was seen that the wording of the article implied acceptance of the principle of a monopoly, leaving the Commission to report only on the means of putting the monopoly into effect. This brought about a collision with the Socialists, who have made the oil monopoly a plank in their party platform since 1928. During the earlier stages of the debate M. Henry Roy, a Senator, had shown that the proposal was unsound from an economic point of view, but this failed to convince the Opposition.

Chamber's Concessions.

After long negotiations throughout the night a compromise was reached by which it was agreed that the Commission should inquire into the conditions under which an oil monopoly could be organized, and should report to the Government, which would in turn inform Parliament. This was accepted by the Socialists after much heart-searching, but was in effect a victory for the Senate. The Chamber made a further concession in abandoning its opposition to the proposal to reduce expenditure by an all-round cut of 5 per cent. after the Senate had agreed to certain modifications which robbed the plan of much of its effectiveness as a means towards balancing the Budget.

The Government twice put the question of confidence, each time on the clause relating to the oil monopoly. In the Chamber M. Daladier secured a majority of 339 votes to 283, the Socialists voting with the Government was successful by 161 votes.

"LIVE AND LET LIVE"

SIR A. BAILEY'S SLOGAN

"Live and let live" was a motto for the Conference of Institutions for the Scientific Study of International Relations suggested by Sir A. Bailey at a dinner he gave, on behalf of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, at Claridge's Hotel, London, to some 300 delegates and "other distinguished guests, including several past and present Ministers of the Crown."

Sir A. Bailey said that the world was "full of fear." The automatic economic control of the world had been jammed by quotas, exchange controls, tariffs, subsidies and the instability of national currencies.

Nevertheless, an indiscriminate removal of tariff barriers and the throwing open of every market to competition without considering the effect on home producers was plainly an impossibility.

As war debts and reparations were a barrier to construction, all efforts to impose financial and economic conditions would fail unless the wisdom and generosity of America came to their assistance. He hoped that Americans would be clever and wise creditors in their own interests. (Hear, hear.)

Reply was made by Dr. Otto Hoetzsch and Dr. Edwin F. Gay, and a toast, "The Study of International Relations" was submitted by Professor Louis Eisenmann, acknowledged by Sir Arthur Bailey, chairman of the Conference.
